TEACHING AND LEARNING PATHWAY

Professional Practice MSc – Medway

The University of Kent’s Centre for Professional Practice, in collaboration with Rochester Grammar School and Brompton Academy, offers qualified teachers the opportunity to obtain a Master’s level qualification relevant to their professional practice.

About the programme

- Suitable for teachers at all levels of their career
- Three years, part-time study to complete the MSc
- Module delivery at weekends (includes Fridays)
- Stage 2 modules led by Rochester Grammar School and Brompton Academy
- In partnership with the New Horizons Teaching School Alliance

Programme structure, content and delivery

All students on the Professional Practice MSc take the following core modules in Stage 1:

Stage 1:

- Learning and Development:
Friday 20 – Sunday 22 October 2017
Friday 24 – Saturday 25 November 2017
- Evidence-based Practice:
Friday 26 – Sunday 28 January 2018
- Inter-professional Working:
Friday 23 – Sunday 25 March 2018

Taught sessions typically commence at 09.00 and end at 17.00.

Although all teaching dates are provisional, these will only be changed in exceptional circumstances.

“The Master’s in Professional Practice was particularly valuable as it could be structured around my own research and areas of interest within teaching.”

Students will take the following modules in Stages 2 and 3:

Stage 2:

- Research Skills
- A Thinking School: Transforming Learning
- Addressing Barriers to Learning

Stage 3:

- School-based Dissertation – linked to the School Development Plan

Each module is introduced through a range of formal seminar sessions, guest speaker lectures and workshops. All modules within the programme are taught over either one or two weekends (typically Friday, Saturday, Sunday).

The core modules are taught at Kent’s Medway campus. The Teaching and Learning modules will be taught at one of our partner schools in Medway.

Teaching and assessment

You will be asked to undertake preparatory module reading and associated tasks, deliver presentations and carry out work-based investigations.

Fees

Annual fee for 2017/18: £2,620
